

GEORGE E. MITCHELL KILLED BY TRAIN

George E. Mitchell, formerly of Vermontville, and for many years a resident of Nashville, where he was employed by the Lentz Table Co., until he retired about a year ago, was struck by a fast train on the Michigan Central tracts near Augusta Wednesday and instantly killed.

He left Nashville the day before and was visiting his son Wayne at Battle Creek.

The funeral was held at Battle Creek Sunday, and the remains were brought to Nashville for interment at Lakeview, the pall-bearers being former workmen with the deceased at the table factory.

Mr. Mitchell lived alone at Nashville. Surviving him is the son Wayne Mitchell, in Battle Creek and three daughters as follows: Mrs. Charles McNaughton, Minneapolis; Mrs. Morgan Biggs, Detroit; and Mrs. Glenn Stocking of Urandale. Two sisters and a stepbrother are also living. They are: Mrs. Clarence Pearce, MacKinaw City; Mrs. Allen Lords, Chester, and Harry Scott, living on a farm near Hastings.

Grant Hawkins has bought Dana Hammond's house.

Edd Campbell from Lansing was in town Saturday.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank Snell, their daughter and her husband of Lansing spent Sunday with Dr. and Mrs. Snell.

The last meeting of the P. T. A. for the season was held at the school house Monday evening with a good attendance. Mrs. Wilson presided in the absence of Mrs. Todd. A short business session was held, after which the program opened with music by the Primary Band. Those little folks performed in their usual excellent manner. Miss Della Eitel came next with a fine vocal solo, and graciously responded to an encore. Misses Ava Tubbs and Gertrude

Warner were heartily applauded for their piano duet and were followed by Mrs. Laura Ferris in two of her splendid, humorous readings. The Kamiensky family furnished a number as the next feature of entertainment, were called back for a second, and kindly appeared again for the closing number on the program. Mrs. L. H. Cone gave a vocal solo in her very charming fashion; she never fails in pleasing her audience. Rev. Rogers of the Congregational church spoke on the responsibility of parenthood and the need of giving children plenty of good reading an environment of refinement, and the example of a right and righteous life. He was followed by Rev. L. H. Cone, who appeared with his violin and so pleased his hearers that he was compelled to return for an encore. Mrs. Jay Hawkins completed the evening with one of her inimitable readings and sent every one home in a happy frame of mind.

The committee to whom P. T. A. members owe their thanks for this splendid program consisted of A. L. Barningham, Mrs. Emma Powers, and Mrs. D. D. Hess.

No more meetings until next September.

Miss Jennie Martin's vocal and piano pupils gave one of their pleasing recitals at the Edward Dwight Memorial Hall Wednesday evening. Several of the pupils were unable to be present. The Musical recitation "The Youngest in the Family" given
